DAILY BUGLE

Kraven

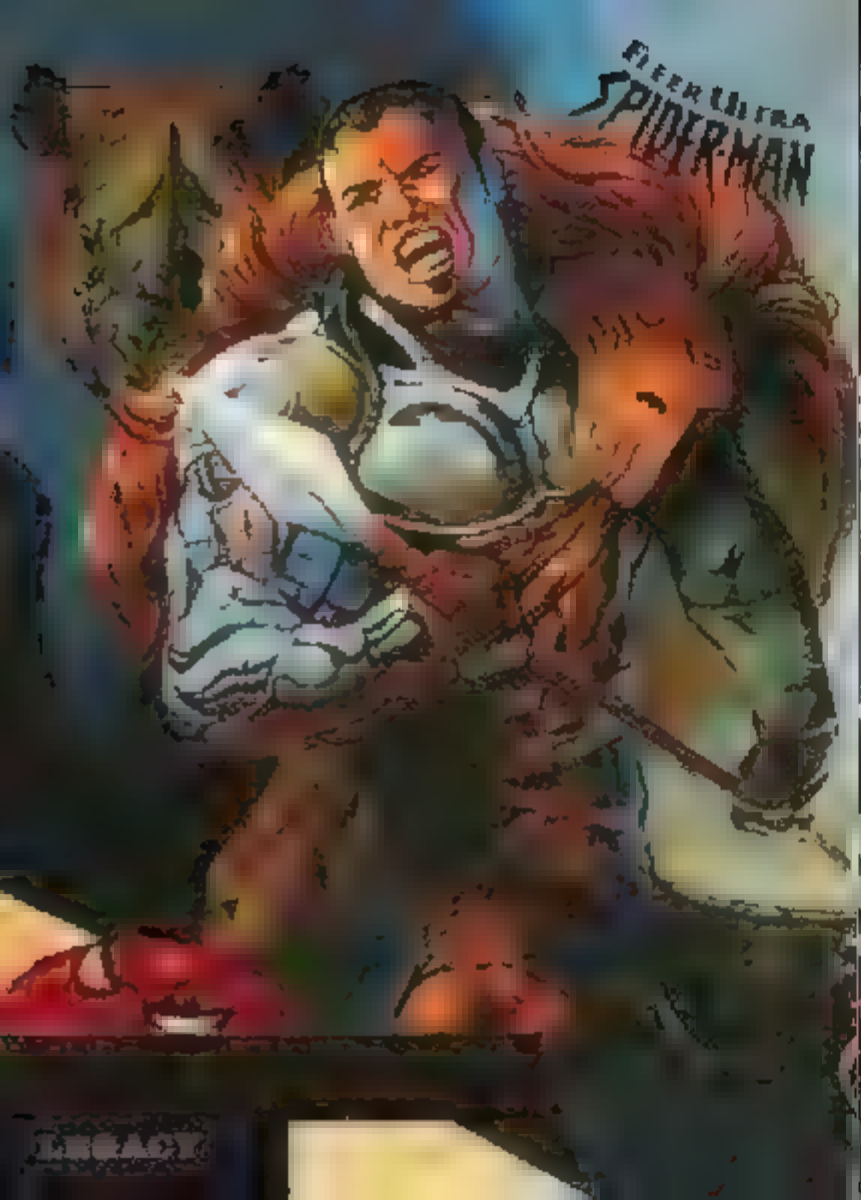
Born Sergei Kravinoff, Kraven was the world's most renowned big-game hunter. Brought to America to kill Spider-Man by his boyhood companion, the Chameleon, Kraven began a life-long obsession with defeating the web-slinger. After many encounters, Kraven committed suicide, leaving behind a legacy of madness that would be inherited by his son Vladimir.

DAILY BUGLE

Chameleon

A servant to the aristocratic Kravinoff family, Dmitri Smerdyakov grew up a faceless "nobody." This feeling of alienation led to his career as the Chameleon, master of disguises. When one of his schemes was foiled by Spider-Man, the Chameleon lured his old friend Kraven to America to kill the hero. A mission that led to Kraven's death and the Chameleon's total mental breakdown.

ARTIST: VINCE EVANS



DAILY BUGLE

Grim Hunter

The son of Kraven the Hunter, Vladimir Kravinoff was taught the ways of his father, the world's greatest big-game hunter. Years later, when Kraven's obsession with Spider-Man drove him to take his own life, Vladimir subjected himself to his father's strength-enhancement process and became the Grim Hunter, swearing to avenge Kraven's death by killing Spider-Man.

DAILY BUGLE

Carrion

The truth about the original Carrion is shrouded in mystery. Claiming to be a clone of biochemist Miles Warren, Carrion attacked Spider-Man, whom he blamed for Warren's death. Later, a genetic virus turned student Malcolm McBride into the new Carrion, and the question remains as to whether the first Carrion was indeed a clone, or a victim of the "Carrion virus."

DAILY BUGLE

Spider-Clone

Before becoming the Jackal, Miles Warren took cell samples from his science class, among them Peter Parker, a.k.a. Spider-Man. From these the Jackal grew a clone of Parker with all of Spider-Man's powers. As part of a larger agenda, he brainwashed the clone into thinking he was the original, while Spider-Man, who believed himself to be the clone, went into self-imposed exile.

Jackal

Miles Warren was a biochemistry professor who developed an obsession for student Gwen Stacy, and blamed Spider-Man for her death. His mind unhinged, he became the Jackal to destroy Spider-Man, using a clone created from Spidey's cell samples. Faking his death, the Jackal emerged years later with a genetically enhanced body, and a new scheme.

DAILY BUGLE

Spencer Smythe

Spencer Smythe, a brilliant robotics engineer, created the first "Spider-Slayer" robot for Daily Bugle publisher J. Jonah Jameson. Its purpose: capturing and unmasking Spider-Man. The web-slinger, however, defeated the robot, and the failure of Smythe's creation led to future generations of increasingly more advanced and dangerous Spider-Slayers.

Jack O'Lantern
Jason Macendale, a ruthless soldier of fortune, adopted the costumed identity of Jack O'Lantern, and became involved in organized crime. After clashing with Spider-Man on numerous occasions he began a territorial feud with the original Hobgoblin. Jack O'Lantern had the Hobgoblin assassinated, and took the fearsome identity as his own.

DAILY BUGLE

Hobgoblin

Ned Leeds, the original Hobgoblin, was assassinated by agents of his rival, Jason (Jack O'Lantern) Macendale. Becoming the new Hobgoblin, Macendale was determined to gain the respect he felt was due him. When a demonic plague engulfed New York, Macendale made a bargain to attain even greater power and was bonded with a demon.

When the human and demon were finally separated, the demon half became Demogoblin, an entity who believed itself to be an agent of holy power. Eventually, Macendale returned as the Hobgoblin and killed his demonic counterpart.

DAILY BUGLE

Kingpin

The Kingpin first encountered Spider-Man when the hero foiled his master scheme to unite the East Coast mobs. The Kingpin, despite repeated clashes with Spider-Man and others, was the most powerful figure in organized crime. His only weaknesses are his devotion to his gentle wife Vanessa, and his estranged son Richard, who has gone on to criminal ventures of his own.

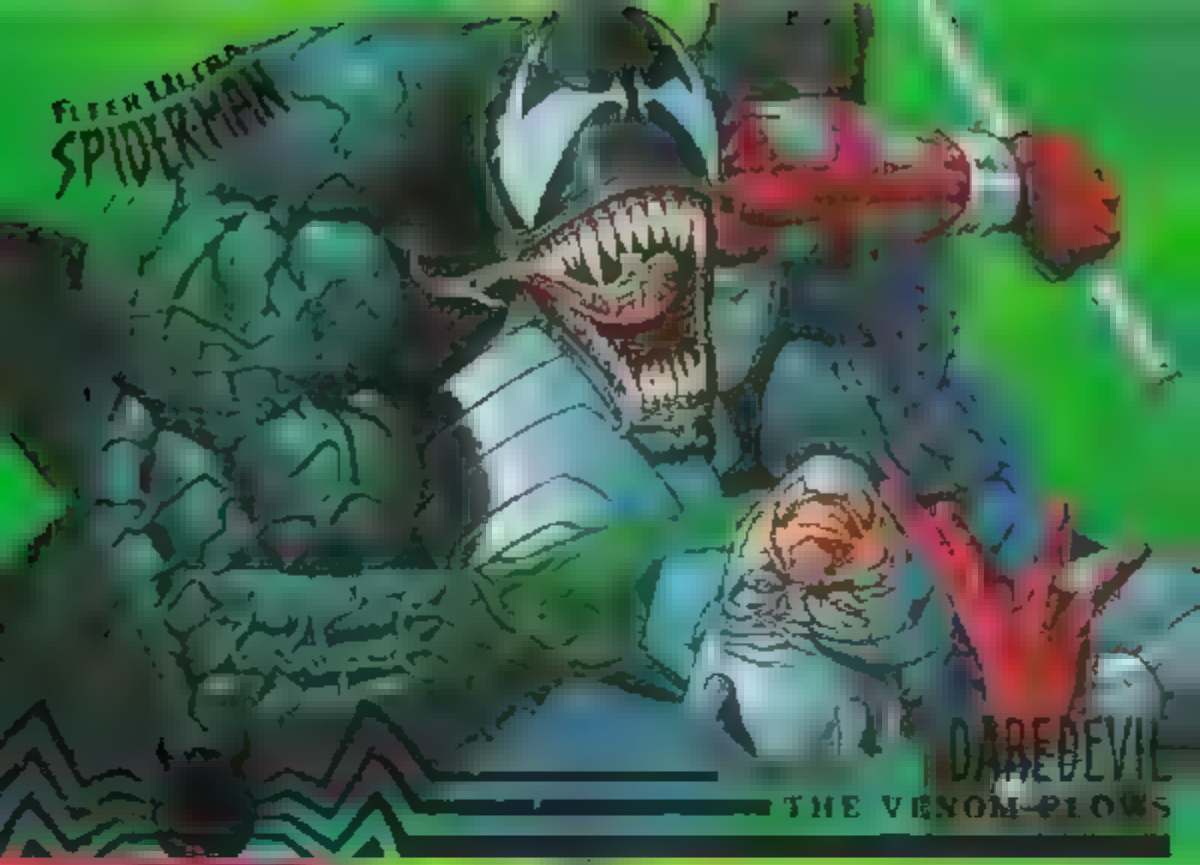
The Venom Flows

When Cletus Kasady first appeared as Carnage, Spider-Man needed my help to defeat him. It was a symbiote to symbiote battle, and though we were tasked of our powers to BREAK THE ITSY-BITSY SPIDER IN TWO AND CHEW ON HIS BRAINS, WE WERE ABLE TO MANGLE CARNAGE AND STOP THE SLAYING OF MORE INNOCENTS!



The Venom Flows

My other and I went to NYC to search for the "about face" views which would make us safe from fear and scared. We were one foot away from it when DAREDEVIL DANCED IN TO PLAY WITH US. HE THOUGHT HE TRICKED US INTO NOT WANTING IT ANYMORE. BUT THE BLIND MAN MADE US SEE WE LIKE US JUST THE WAY WE ARE.

The Venom Force

While protecting the underground city where my friends live, I was attacked by the fiery high-tech warriors hired by Crucify Taylor to AVENGE BLOOD FOR KILLING TAYLOR'S SON WHEN WE ESCAPED FROM THE VAULT. WE WOULD HAVE HAPPILY SENTENCED THEM TO CRUEL AND UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT. BUT WE HAD BIGGER FISHIES TO FRY.

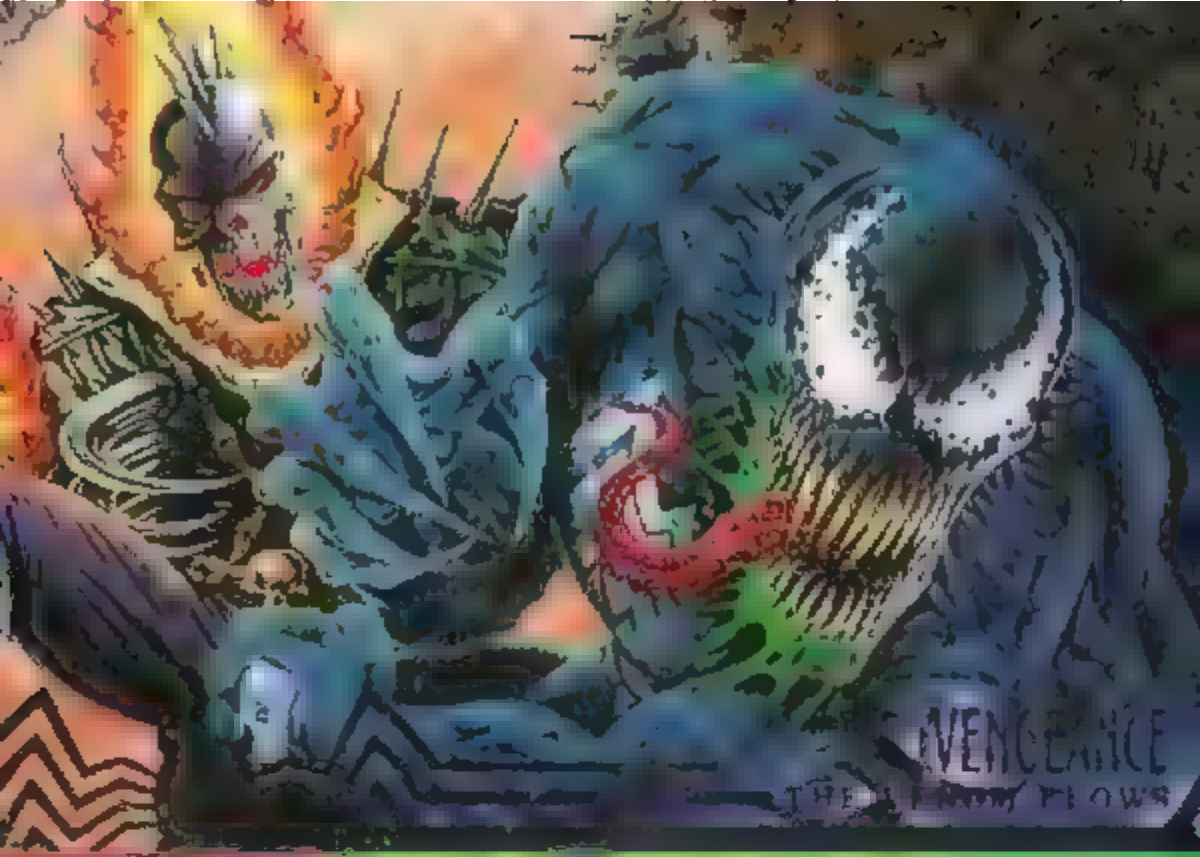
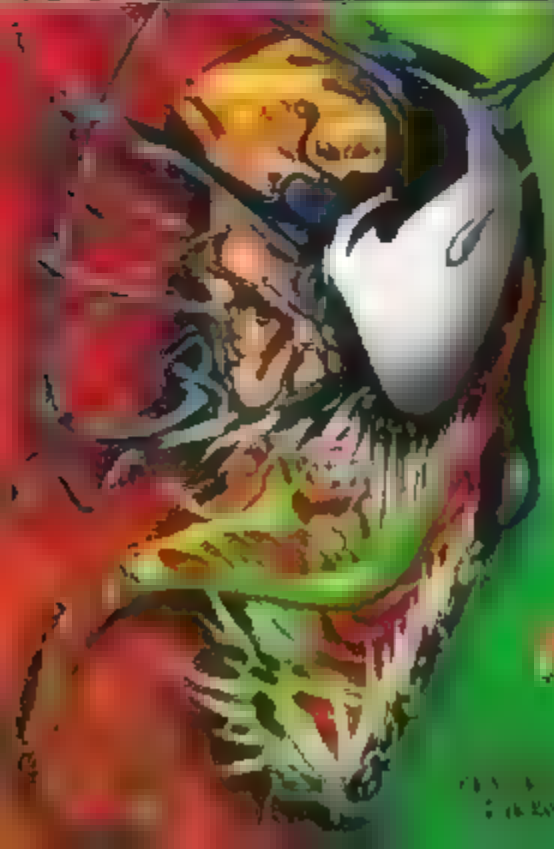
...THOUGH THE BLOODSUCKER SEEMED MORE INTERESTED IN DRINKING THE WARM, WET BLOOD OF CRIMINALS THAN IN PROTECTING INNOCENTS THE WAY WE DO.

The Venom Flows

There we were, making San Francisco parks safe for lovers when we were mercilessly attacked by the Hell Fire Set by Silver Sable a super hero

AND LILY DOES HER GOOD DEEDS FOR MONEY. BUT WHEN THE SIEGE OF DARKNESS CAME AND LILLIN TRIED TO EAT SABLE WE RESCUED HER AND GAVE HER A LESSON IN TRUE HEROISM.





The Venom Flows

Ex New York cop Michael Badgeline has a symbiote of his own. The Spirit of Vengeance. As Vengeance, he helped us rescue the people under our protection

FROM TECHNO-VIRUS INFECTED STALKERS. THOUGH THEY HAD NO SKULLS TO CRACK OR BRAINS TO EAT WE AND VENGEANCE BLASTED THEM INTO TINY LITTLE BITS AND SAVED OUR FRIENDS.

SPIDER-MAN TEAM UPS SILVER SABLE

Spider-Man's first encounter with Silver Sable was nearly his last! Sable's crack unit, the Wild Pack, had cornered the notorious pirate, called the Black Fox. Spider-Man, not knowing the situation, leapt in to save the fur-clad villain time to escape, and earn Sable's enmity.

Spider-Man was then forced to track down the Fox, and help Silver Sable before she killed the wild Pack on sight!
